Granada wrestlers are out

The East Bay Athletic League Board of Governors held a special session yesterday, and ruled that four Granada High School wrestlers are ineligible for competition for the remainder of the season.

The decision stemmed from a protest filed by four EBAL coaches against Granada coach Steve Page. The charges included a violation of a limit set on the number of matches a wrestler can participate in during a season.

The President of the Board, George Wilson, said that because scrimmages were counted towards the total, Tom Sherman, Monte Young, Bill Freeman, and Rick Quiroz were over the 18 meets allowed by the EBAL law.

City boosts low income housing plan

PLEASANTON — City council last night rallied to the cause of low income housing by reinstating sections encouraging the development of subsidized apartments into the residential allocation program.

By unanimous vote council included two revised versions of low income housing incentives into the program's point system.

Monday council had deleted two similar sections by a 3-2 vote.

The action last night was not a complete turnabout. Mayor Robert Philcox, vice mayor Ken Mercer and member Bill Herlihy initiated the meeting by asserting their votes Monday were not meant to discourage low income housing but to encourage it.

The members said their motives had been misinterpreted by newspapers and misunderstood by the community.

The new section included in the program last night essentially combines, with slight alterations, the two sections deleted Monday.

It will give developers up to 20 points for voluntarily building low income apartment units, or for donating cash into a city-controlled pool to assist low income housing.

The action came after housing authority board chairperson Christine Pearson came to plead the commission's cause, thinking council Monday had struck all low income housing provisions from the program permanently.

"I thought we were proposing a much superior plan. Evidently that wasn't communicated properly," said Philcox, referring to Monday's deletions.

Mercer, explaining his Monday vote, said he thought the housing authority and subsidized developers would benefit if the incentives were cut out of the point system, noting that those builders wouldn't then face competition from other regular developers.

Council's action reinstating the provision applies only to rental units.

A separate section, setting aside sewer connections specifically for low income single-family homes, is still being considered.

It should be noted that Philcox never intended to decrease the percentage of sewer connections set aside, as previously reported. Philcox's suggestion made Monday would have allowed up to 2 percent of all new rental units annually to be available for lower income tenants. That is approximately the same percentage as suggested by staff.

Waiting for Lab study

Opposing sides of the nuclear weapons controversy at branches of the University of California may have to wait two weeks to respond to a confidential study leaked Tuesday that recommended continuing weapons research but with tighter university control.

Neither UC president David Saxon, Lawrence Livermore Laboratory nor the student UC Nuclear Weapons Labs Conversion Project had seen the report yesterday.

The study, by an eight-member panel headed by former UCLA vice chancellor William Gerberding, reportedly recommended UC continue weapons development at LLL and Los Alamos but with less autonomy from university administration and policy makers. Other committee members included LLL's associate director for nuclear testing Dr. Richard Wagner and the lab's first head Dr. Herbert York.

The Conversion Project members had opposed UC's continued affiliation with weapons research and argued loud and long at a series of public hearings last year that education and weapons were incompatible.

However neither they nor Saxon have seen the study and a release date set. The source of the leak has not been identified.

"The president's office had said mid-February and he would not be in a position to officially comment until that time," said UC's assistant vice president for university relations Leo Geier yesterday.

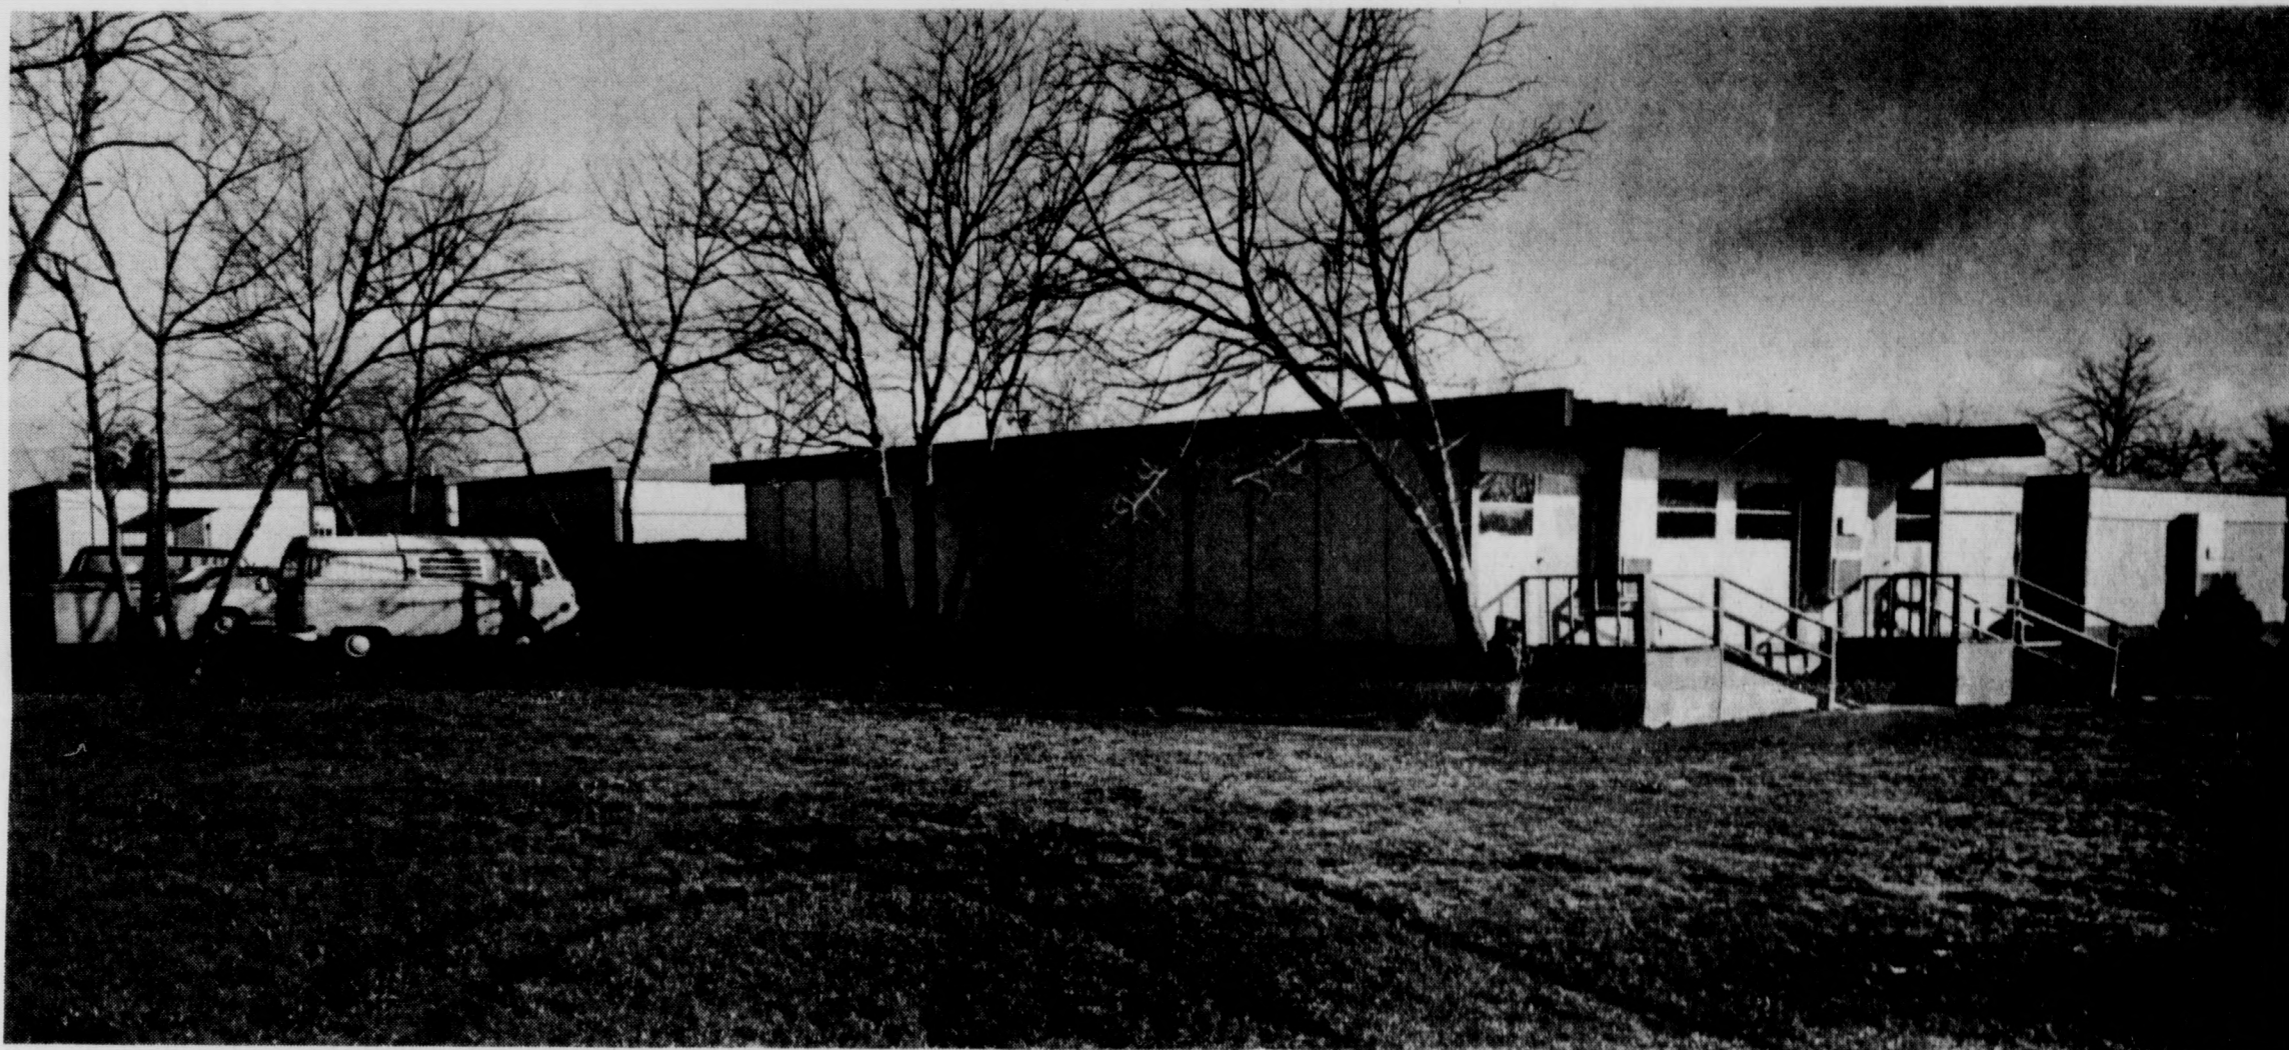

The Conversion Project was also surprised by the leak and will not comment until it has evaluated an official copy of the study.

The study group held public hearings in Livermore in October with citizens and lab personnel as well as a number of confidential study sessions at the lab with researchers and group leaders.

York, now a physicist at UC San Diego, headed the lab from 1952 to 1958. He was in Washington, D.C. yesterday, unavailable for comment. Wagner was in Edmonton, Alberta supervising the joint U.S.-Canadian search and cleanup of radiation from the Soviet satellite that crashed in the Northwest Territory last week.

Center of opposition

Residents in area of Twin Creeks School, San Ramon, have expressed opposition to a year-round schools program.

Big blitz against year-round schools

SAN RAMON — Citing the need for further study of alternatives, a group of parents in the Twin Creeks area is continuing an "informational blitz" aimed at holding off if not preventing a year-round schools program at the elementary school in their area.

The committee of approximately 15 parents, calling themselves the Twin Creeks Parents Concerned About Year-Round Schools, met last night to determine courses of action in the immediate days ahead.

With the San Ramon Valley Unified School District board apparently ready to form another year-round schools study committee, the Twin Creeks group is poised to rebut the need for another such committee or, at least, suggest persons that should serve on such a panel.

After lengthy studies the latter part of 1977 and further information gathering by a year-round schools coordinator, the board in late January approved a recommendation to sidetrack implementation of such a plan for the 1978-79 school year.

The last year-round schools advisory committee had recommended a pilot project at four schools — Twin Creeks, Green Valley, Montevideo, and Walt Disney.

Ironically, the coordinator for the most recent study, which included polling residents in the four school communities, was the principal of Twin Creeks School, Bud Lowrey.

The poll, along with the apparent lack of precise and up to date information, proved the death knell for a YRS pilot project in the coming school year.

And the Twin Creeks parents were instrumental in turning around opinion in Close vote looms

Nipper decision is near

OAKLAND — Alameda County supervisors are expected to reach a decision March 2 in the long controversy over Carl Nipper's proposed 120 unit development on the Pleasanton Ridge.

Supervisor John George won't be present at the 2:30 p.m. session March 2, but he will announce his vote that morning and if he is needed to break a tie decision, supervisors will continue the item until all five can be present.

So far Supervisor Valerie Raymond appears opposed to the 120 units or even the 92 units recommended by a 5-3 vote of the planning commission.

Supervisor Fred Cooper seems to advocate the development. Judging by past votes on the issue, notably the general plan amendment, Supervisor Charles Santana appears to favor it and George may oppose it.

That would leave Supervisor Joseph Bort as the key. He seemed to favor somewhat heavy development on the general plan vote, but yesterday he had some serious questions about the package sewage treatment plant Nipper proposes.

Raymond appeared skeptical that one year of testing is enough to guarantee that the plant would not "produce problems 10 years down the road."

One speaker addressing the board said that if the plant does fail, the county, through its special services district, would "be left holding the bag" to build a plant that did work.

Another, Diane Fries of Foothill

Road, said her property backs up to the development. She doesn't want the open space on the plan to be filled with sewage ponds, as developer Paul Heck has promised.

Heck claimed that effluent in those ponds would be cleaner than the water which flows in Niles Creek.

Fries said she still is afraid the effluent might have an odor and wonders if it will overflow during a very rainy winter.

"It won't," said Heck. "We're doubling the ponds' size."

Mary Marshall, who lives in Kilcare Woods, said the development is not good land use planning. Kilcare Woods itself is a planning mistake and the county should not make another one with Heck's land, she said.

Pleasanton Council Member

Joyce LeClaire reiterated her city's objections to the proposal, especially its potential impact on the underground water table. So did Alameda County Water District representatives Stan Saylor and Gene Rhodes.

Heck said that he can't build any way until Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board approves his package plant and that implies his development's effluent won't hurt the ACWD watershed. (Fremont takes its underground water supply from Alameda Creek in Niles.)

Heck said he will hook a reverse osmosis desalinizing plant behind the effluent treatment plant and get water so low in salts it will hit 150 parts per million on the scale, much lower than what Pleasanton and Livermore drink.

VMH health aid

Persons suffering from the pain of stress — illnesses such as ulcers, back pain or headaches — will be able to lessen or eliminate these aches if a new device at Valley Memorial Hospital proves its worth.

"Biofeedback" machines that show changes in heart rate, skin temperature, muscle tension and other bodily functions have been installed at the hospital and will be operating at an open house next Thursday from 1:30 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Persons afflicted with such illnesses as stuttering, ulcers, migraine headaches and back pains may benefit from the devices, according to biofeedback trainer Helga Perlmutter. Appointments for the devices are currently being taken.

Zone 7 votes six cent cut in tax rate

LIVERMORE — Zone 7's tax rate for the next fiscal year will be reduced six cents over last year's figure, directors of the Alameda County Flood Control and Water Conservation District's local board voted Wednesday night.

The drop to 28 cents per $100 of assessed valuation was two cents lower than Zone 7 staff had recommended and was the fourth straight tax rate reduction for the agency. It will mean that revenues will be $116,000 less than had been anticipated.

Staff had recommended that the general fund tax rate be set at the maximum allowable 15 cents so funds would accumulate to pay for flood control improvements as they become necessary.

Director Richard Ryon suggested that the board did not need that much money and could aid taxpayers with a "real" reduction in taxes — one that isn't wiped out by inflation or higher assessed values.

General Manager Mun Mar said the funds provided by the higher tax rate would finance a move of Zone 7 staff in Hayward to offices somewhere in the Valley, a move long discussed by the board, as well as future flood control improvements.

But Director Robert Pearson said that inflation in the construction industry made it unwise to accumulate funds for unspecified projects.

Control your body

LIVERMORE — An array of devices which allow people to teach themselves how to manipulate bodily processes and thus control pain from several common afflictions will soon be put into service at Valley Memorial Hospital.

The machines, termed "biofeedback" devices, show pain sufferers how to raise body temperature, alter heart rate or control blood pressure in response to pain caused by stress.

Helga Perlmutter, biofeedback trainer who talked hospital administrators into making the $5,000 purchase, says the devices can, for example, offer migraine headache sufferers relief in up to 98 percent of all cases.

"It gives people information about themselves so they can learn to control these processes," Perlmutter explained.

By attaching small electrodes, biofeedback machines continuously show levels of muscle tension, body temperature, heart beat, and brain waves. Audible beepers and visual meters indicate changes, either positive or negative, in these bodily functions.

Repeated use of the devices can help people learn how to manipulate these bodily responses and thus lessen or eliminate stress-induced pain.

Ideas about controlling one's own bodily functions to lessen pain are not new, she says, but advances in technology have made the learning process easier. Similar devices at other hospitals are proving highly successful in teaching people to control pain, she adds.

After clients learn to control muscle tenseness or skin temperature using the machine, training to duplicate the process without the device begins. This consists of pre-recorded tapes teaching relaxation and other types of therapy if needed.

The machine can also be used to treat asthma, stuttering, ulcers, clenched teeth at night and facial tics, she says.

Helga Perlmutter demonstrates the use of biofeedback devices recently installed at Valley Memorial Hospital to teach people how to control stress-induced pain.

An open house to acquaint the public with the biofeedback process will be held at Valley Memorial Hospital Feb. 9 from 1:30 p.m. to 4 p.m.

The new service, which is now available for appointments, can be obtained through referral by a physician or licensed mental health worker, or without referral if the client has had a physical examination within the past six months. A typical program consisting of a session with Dr. Allen Schlies, medical director of the service, an initial orientation session with the biofeedback trainer, 10 training sessions and a weekly group session costs $330. For more information, call the outpatient registration desk at 447-7000, extension 262.

Pro family group rallies in capitol

Despite an apparent snub by Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Jr., some 700 Pro-Family Coalition members rallied in Sacramento Wednesday and heard talks by GOP gubernatorial candidate John Briggs, Assemblymen Alister McAlister and Mike Antonovich, and speeches dealing with the feminist movement, abortion and homosexuality.

The coalition, representing 15 to 20 groups statewide and including a large assemblage of women from the Valley and Southern Alameda County, initially gathered at the north capitol entrance to hear Briggs, who is leading the state campaign to ban homosexual teachers in public schools, McAlister, a prospective candidate for the state Attorney General's office, Antonovich, a GOP lieutenant governor aspirant, Sen. H.L. Richardson, Sen. George Deukmejian, and Assemblyman William Dannemeyer.

From there a representative group proceeded to Brown's office where they were kept waiting for the better part of an hour, though he reportedly had been informed well in advance of the group's visit.

The Pro-Family Coalition representatives had intended to present him with a plaque but, according to Valley women present Wednesday, Brown sent word that his presence could represent tacit support of the group's principals. His press representative said Brown "would consider it an act of tokenism as his views do not coincide with the group's."

Some 600 to 700 later convened at the Hotel Senator for a luncheon program featuring talks by Sally Holiday, Director of Women Ministries at Melodyland in Anaheim, who spoke on the feminist movement; Dr. Murray Norris, president of Christian Family Renewal, whose subject was humanism; Barbara Warburton, Orange County Speakers Bureau for Crusade for Life, speaking on abortion, and Sandy Ostby, executive director of Christian Cause, who discussed homosexuality.

Other speakers included Mary Schmitz, wife of conservative senatorial candidate John Schmitz, discussing the Equal Rights Amendment in this state; Thomas Burton of San Francisco, called an authority on Status of Women Commissions in California; Mae Lisonbee, director of California Citizens Review Committee of the International Womens Year, and Marie Paul of Long Beach on the child liberation movement.

Keynote address at the morning rally was given by Doris Allen of Westminster, a school board trustee.

their area from a favorable stance last fall to a two-thirds thumbs-down vote when Lowrey polled in January.

The Twin Creeks committee members had circulated a two-page flyer to some 220 residents asking if they were aware of the options to year-round schools.

David Leonard, one of the spearheads of the committee, said "in the two weeks before the board meeting (of Jan. 23) we tried to gather information on the subject of YRS and alternatives. But it was really hard to come by as there was some resistance from (the school) district."

"We also realized," continued Leonard, "that some of the assumptions made by the district were not accurate." Leonard claims some of the financial comparisons (of year-round schools and traditional schools) were based on district averages — "but you just can't take an insurance premium and divide it by 13,500 kids," he contends.

"It's a situation where a school district takes a stance and says this is what we're going to do," Leonard added. "I think they thought in September they were really going to have a housing problem."

Leonard said the concept of year-round schools is not new to the San Ramon district or public schools in general, saying the first school plans were tried 74 years ago.

"Our committee has yet to find any data that shows kids learn any better in a year-round schools format."

He also referred to a letter he received Wednesday from the state Department of Education's YRS section. "The state consultant in his letter said you have to go to a mandated YRS program to get any of the financial economy."

Leonard concluded that "you're not giving people much of a choice if you have to go to a year-round program." Jan Shank, who may make any presentation the group works-up for Monday night's board session, said they've been actively gathering data from both successful and unsuccessful YRS schools.

"Until a month-and-a-half ago I was for year-round schools," Mrs. Shank commented. "But I realized after talking with those involved in the district that they didn't have the answers to our questions."

"It boils down to I don't want my children experimented on," she continued. "What we seem to have now is a credibility gap between the board, those studying year-round schools, and the community."

Mrs. Shank said the Twin Creeks group was "kind of its own citizen advisory committee."

Water unit cuts taxes

Large scale projects should either be financed by bonds or not undertaken at all, he said.

Director George Lydiken disagreed, saying the four-cent rate decrease should be approved as proposed so funds can be available for projects the board has discussed previously, such as an independent reclamation study.

The 28-cent tax rate was adopted unanimously when Mar said the Zone could operate on that amount of money.

In other action, the board on a split ballot voted to send two directors to the Policy Advisory Committee established by the Livermore-Amador Valley

Water Management Agency (LAVWMA) to comment on a reclamation project currently under study.

Pearson said reclamation of wastewater locally had been studied several times previously at high cost without any usable results. The board should conduct its own study, he said, and not participate in LAVWMA's because Zone 7 presence "would have no impact."

Lydiken, the other dissenting vote, also promoted a separate Zone study of reclamation alternatives. "LAVWMA doesn't want us there," he said. "They're going to be disappointed when we walk in the door."

The board voted 4-2 to appoint two directors to the Policy Advisory Committee and unanimously decided to conduct its own reclamation study, hoping to reconcile differences between the two agencies' reports at a later date.

The board also directed Mar to investigate how Zone 7 would go about buying some capacity in the LAVWMA pipeline that will carry sewage to San Francisco Bay.

Directors discussed the possibility of connecting to the LAVWMA pipeline those residences in the unincorporated areas currently served by septic tanks. There is currently set aside in the pipeline a capacity of .48 million gallons per day to assume those hookups, Mar told the board.

Time to put city plans to work, says Turner

LIVERMORE — "The strongest reason for running for re-election is that for four years we've laid the groundwork in the General Plan and I want to be around to implement those programs. I see that I've done some good things on the council," Dale Turner done a good job of it, now we've got to go out and be sales people," he believes.

Specifically he defends the building of the new city hall as being "important to our long-range plans. Whether you want to agree to it or not, you have to have a showplace to bring he says. He cites equitable fees, competitive development fees with neighboring cities as "tools" for becoming aggressive in the market and encouraging new income.

"When I first came on the council I said the development fees were too high if we really want to go out and attract new business," he recalls. He notes the fees have been lowered to a competitive level.

Confronting the argument that bigger businesses would not care to lease property from Southern Pacific, Turner says it's not necessarily true. "If you can build a building for a company and lease it back to them for a reasonable cost, they're going to accept it," he believes.

He would favor encouraging more and bigger businesses in the downtown area. And he admits this will create traffic problems. "I don't think the engineering department has done an especially good job of mapping out traffic patterns," he says. "A good example of that is P Street. I think we've got to do a lot better in that area or we're going to have major problems."

He doesn't see parking meters as a solution to the parking problems. "Parking meters just don't make any money, they cost a lot initially and take a long time to realize a return, plus there's a lot of maintenance problems," he says.

And he thinks the Mer-

says matter of factly. "As a businessman I think I come at the council in a different manner than the other four."

He agrees that it is good to have council members of such diverse backgrounds as now sit on the council. "It's good to have all those differing opinions, differing philosophies," he says. And likewise he sees the council critics as a good sign, "because it tells me people are interested. If those council chambers are empty, I'm worried. I like to see them packed. It's good as long as people have corrective criticism," he notes. "Just running the system down is not beneficial. You've got to be willing to get in there and work."

That's what Turner has done in his term in office, he feels. He points to the future development of the downtown business area and the proposed north-south shopping mall.

"I think for the last four years we've been philosophers, we've drawn up our General Plan and have prospective clients whether they be commercial or industrial. They are impressed by nice surroundings."

Turner adds, "That's just one reason. Secondly, just for efficiency purposes it's good to have everybody in the same building. Perhaps some of the problems of the police department could have been avoided if the police department and city hall had been in the same building. We're spread all over town, which leads to all kinds of inefficient operation through no fault of the employees."

"We're going to have all the tools of our trade in one building and it's going to have a very favorable impact on the city of Livermore," he concludes.

The incumbent, who is assistant vice president and manager of Lloyd's Bank of Livermore, sees as a priority of the city to go out and encourage new income into the budget. "We can't continually go into other accounts and take money out to run the city,"

Needs bow to dollars

PLEASANTON — Money, ever an object of desire, may be the pivoting point in determining whether the Human Services Commission should develop an action plan to meet local needs.

City council, in a joint workshop Wednesday, heard six commission recommendations on how to use the human needs survey as a base for city action.

But before approving any plans, council is asking the commission to come up with a cost analysis to be presented Wednesday, Feb. 15, in council chambers at 30 West Angela Street at 8 p.m.

The commission recommends council grant funds to develop an action plan and hire a full-time staff worker to coordinate that plan in future years.

Most council members listened to the recommendations Wednesday without interjecting opinions, reserving those until after the estimated cost is known.

The human needs survey, completed over a month ago, was funded by the Alameda County Training and Employment Board/Associated Community Action Program (ACTEB/ACAP) using CETA workers. Initiated during the formation of the human services commission, the study was intended to be used as a guide for future city plans.

But it originally met some resistance from several recreation commissioners who felt citizen needs were already known. Council member Frank Brandes also worried the commission and survey would create another "unnecessary" level in city bureaucracy.

It now seems, however, that the approximately $20,000 survey has given city officials at least one piece of new and interesting information.

Of the 282 residents questioned, 58 percent said they would support a $1 million bond issued to develop parkland owned by the city. A majority also said they would like a BART extension out to the valley, but didn't indicate if they would be willing to pay for such a service.

Two newcomers at Dublin library

New faces at the Dublin Public Library are Kristen Barnhart, left, and Susan Rowe. Barnhart is Library Assistant II; Rowe, Children's Librarian I.

DUBLIN — Kristen Barnhart and Susan Rowe are new additions to the Dublin Public Library staff.

Barnhart, from Pomona, Ca., went to Cal State Hayward. She has been in the Bay area for five-and-a-half years. Her new position is Library Assistant II. Rowe hails from Maitland, Florida. She attended the University of Florida at Gainesville and Emory University in Atlanta. She has lived in the Bay area five years. Her position is Children's Librarian I.

Both women said one of their main duties was to answer questions asked by children coming to the Dublin Public Library.

The most frequent question is, "What book can I read?" the women reported.

Planning and implementing children's programs are other duties. They also go to elementary school classrooms within the Murray School District to tell stories and talk about books. Story times are conducted in the library by Rowe and Barnhart. They said the Tuesday morning and Wednesday afternoon sessions are full but there is still room in the Wednesday morning group. The latter session is for ages 3 to 5 years. It is held from 10 to 10:30 a.m.

On Saturdays at 2 p.m., free films are offered to elementary school children.

Rowe said three free films on Black History would be offered in two sessions on Feb. 15. The first session will be from 3:30 to 4:15 p.m.; second, 7:30 to 8:15 p.m.

The three films include one entitled "Soul Music." The second one is a biography of Aretha Franklin; third, "Black Music in America."

Puppet and magic shows plus a summer reading theme are also being planned.

For further information, call the Dublin Public Library at 828-1315.

Apperson backers

PLEASANTON — Rumors of new Sierra Club legal action against Bill Apperson's planned deluxe guest ranch near Sunol have caused potential financial backers to balk, according to Apperson's attorney Joe Joiner.

"We haven't lost them, but we've certainly lost the ability to proceed with development immediately," laments Joiner.

After the state Supreme Court dropped the Sierra Club suit against Apperson in December, Apperson planned to move towards construction right away, finishing all financial matters by this month.

The Sierra Club threw a bug into those plans, however, several weeks ago when club attorney Larry Silver intimidated the group might sue Alameda County for changing a zoning policy to allow recreational uses on agricultural land.

The three-year long suit had hinged on the county's zoning policy, which the Sierra Club claimed didn't allow guest cottages on agriculturally zoned property.

By changing the zoning ordinance, the county rendered the suit moot.

After the Supreme Court's decision, Joiner thought the issue was dead. Not so. Although the Sierra Club has yet to file any suit against the county, the rumors alone have scared off several backers.

Joiner says he should know if the conservationists intend to file the new suit within two weeks. Meanwhile, development is stymied.

Apperson, a Pleasanton resident, already has the conditional use permit to build a 145-acre guest ranch on his 2,555 acres. The facility, six miles south of town, would include a health spa, cottages, hiking and riding trails and a restaurant.

Amador grad in Hungary

Kristin Larson of Pleasanton is studying in Hungary for five months with a group of students from Lewis and Clark College.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Larson of 1732 Harvest Rd., she is a junior at Lewis and Clark and a 1976 graduate of Amador Valley High School.

The group is currently in Vienna, Austria, where the members will study until the second week of February. At that time, studies will be moved to Budapest for three months. After some independent traveling in Hungary and the adjacent countries, the group will return to the United States May 30.

The Hungary trip is part of Lewis and Clark's overseas study program which sends several groups of students to study in foreign countries each year.

BART special rates on Saturdays to end

No more cheap rates on BART on Saturdays.

BART reminds you that the special 50 cent maximum BART fare charged on the four Saturdays in January has expired.

It was all a teaser to introduce you to the regular Saturday service begun at the first of the year.

BART Director John Glenn of Fremont, an advocate of a single flat fare, said the impact of the four-Saturday experiment will be evaluated in terms of increasing off-peak ridership versus overall costs.

Glenn thinks that in the short term, a flat fare could be applied to the non-commute hours of travel.

Eventually as BART increases its capacity to carry more people during the commute period, the flat fare could be applied for the entire operating day, said Glenn.

"I'd like to see BART raise its minimum fare to 50 cents, which I believe is consistent with the concept of BART to primarily serve the 'long haul' riders," said Glenn.

"BART should not be competing with AC Transit or San Francisco Muni for the same riders. Instead the different systems should be complementary to each other and thus benefit the public at large."

Ridership at the reduced January fares was higher on the average than for the holiday Saturday season. Average ran 73,626 for the four Saturdays in January versus 64,820 for the seven Saturdays before New Year's Day.

Highest day among all of the Saturdays was 81,992 on Jan. 21. It was set during the AC Transit strike, which BART analysts say increased ridership approximately 17 per cent on those Saturdays.

Sen. Cranston balks at pipeline stand

SAN FRANCISCO — Sen. Alan Cranston (D-CA) has decided to stay out of the LAVWMA pipeline fray, aide Gerald Yoachum said yesterday.

As Cranston's liaison, Yoachum was urged by the CARD Committee in early December to investigate the valley's sewer problems, the $28 million waste water export pipeline in particular.

Yoachum met with CARD and Livermore-Amador Valley Water Management Agency officials, then contacted the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

"The EPA feels it's (the pipeline) been studied to death. The State Water Resources Control Board feels the same. So that's it as far as we're concerned," Yoachum told The Times yesterday.

"We feel it is unwarranted for us to get in this. It's really up the local people to decide what to do about it," he added, referring to CARD's initiative aimed at putting the issue on the June 6 ballot.

CARD, a 30-member Pleasanton group, turned in petitions containing over 6,000 signatures to LAVWMA officials Tuesday evening. LAVWMA agreed to accept the petitions and check the signatures, but could still refuse to put the initiative on the ballot, claiming CARD initiated an administrative action, not a policy action.

This house costs

New houses in San Ramon Valley will cost more soon — as much as $1,000 more per unit.

So what's new? Everything costs more, and we've become conditioned to regular hikes in the price of housing.

The difference in San Ramon is the reasoning behind the increases. The local school board and the county board of supervisors have approved a bedroom tax levy on developers. They'll have to pay $300 for every bedroom in a new structure, after the first one, up to a $900 limit.

The money will be used to finance future school construction to house all those students in all those new homes.

Developers can forego the fee by donating land to the school system. Some have already chosen that alternative. But many will simply pay the fee, and as reported in a Times story this week, pass along the expense to homebuyers.

So, that new four-bedroom ranchstyle will cost approximately $1,000 more than it would have before the levy was imposed.

The bedroom tax comes at a time when San Ramon school administrators are puzzling over crowded classrooms. The building boom is magnifying an already difficult situation.

Numerous plans have been forwarded to handle the expected crush of youngsters through 1980. The most drastic, year-round classes, was soundly rejected by parents, teachers and the school board last week.

The only solution agreed upon to date is the assessment on home builders, and ultimately, their customers.

Beleagued property owners feel they're paying too much already in taxes that finance schools. The bedroom levy is just one more brick for the load.

Apparently, however, it's not too much to endure, otherwise those plans for year-round schools and double daily sessions would have been implemented by now.

Taking that big jump

They're known as jumpers. The term refers to coaches of college basketball and football teams. Usually jumpers are young. They're ambitious. They bound from job to job on an elusive search for financial security, prestige and power.

Jumpers sign multi-year contracts with an institution but when a better offer comes along contracts are discarded like so much tissue paper. Then the jumper takes that leap to higher status.

A parallel has been drawn recently between these athletic huddlers and lame-duck school superintendent Bruce Newlin of the Amador-Pleasanton districts.

Newlin, who asked out of his contract late last year to take a similar position with a school district in Southern California. He embarks on his new endeavor later this month.

People associated with the districts here are beginning to feel like those college football teams who have been jumped over by ambitious coaches.

In fact, one parent at a public meeting this week said he's tired of the Pleasanton-Amador district being a stepping stone for school administrators with grand designs.

While employees are expected to jump at offers of more money and better conditions, we've come to expect something more from a top school administrator — commitment. We entrust in them the minds and bodies of children, and in return should demand that commitment.

Maybe that can be insured with the next superintendent. Take this example from the pages of the college football playbook.

A jumping coach left his school this year for a better job in the Midwest. A clause in the contract, however, demanded he pay the abandoned college for departing. The bill came to $50,000. The coach left, but he paid first.

No void here

In the never-ending flow of reports on the status of Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, there was one last year that continues to be a puzzle.

This particular study urged the Lab to seek out scientists of higher caliber. It noted a void created by Edward Teller's departures as a full time member of the administration. It went on to say the Lab needs more men, or perhaps women, like him.

Well just how far does LLL have to go?

Lawrence Lab has always boasted one of the nation's fine collection of scientific minds.

Consider this lineup.

There's Harold Brown, former

LLL director who's now Secretary of Defense. Dr. Michael May, currently associate director, has been considered to become Assistant Secretary of Energy for defense. Dr. Richard Wagner is currently heading up a team of American and Canadian scientists probing the Northwest Territory of Canada for nuclear wreckage of that Satellite.

Lab scientists have been working for years with SALT talks negotiators, and are regularly beckoned to Washington for expert testimony on energy and weapons.

Their knowledge and skill should be evident. To say a void exists at LLL is stretching the point.

FOCUS/Capitol flap

Brown's pariah

If there is one person/department in state government that has helped turn the gubernatorial race from a shoo-in for Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Jr. to a living-breathing contest, it would have to be Mario Robledo and the Department of Health and Welfare.

Robledo is living proof that when one has a fixation on appointing minorities to high administrative positions in government, disregarding in some instances more qualified people, there is every chance that some will, shall we say, not pan-out.

According to a survey of California state legislators, the Department of Health is the worst in state government. The legislators described Robledo's administration as "inefficient, incompetent, chaotic and unresponsive."

The only real competition for the abhorred mantle would be "Queen of the Roads" Adriana Gianturco and the Department of Transportation — authors of the infamous "diamond lanes."

What has brought Brown back into the arena with all the other candidates is the latest flap in Sacramento ... swirling around one Dr. Josette Mondanaro and a Henry Collins.

It seems Dr. Mondanaro wrote an alleged epithet-filled letter, on state stationery, to someone she was in disagreement with.

The letter apparently found its way back to Brown, which is curious in itself.

While Robledo stands to one side, no doubt smacking his lips and demanding that his friend Henry get a choice job in his department, two sub-chiefs, Dr. Jerome Lackner and Raymond Procnier, try to explain it all to the now slightly-flustered Brown.

Dr. Mondanaro, a self-described lesbian and apparently damned proud of it, through the intermediaries or directly has tried to pin Brown to the wall, claiming it was he who fired her ... and it wasn't just because of that letter.

Apparently Dr. Mondanaro, who is in charge of the drug abuse section of the Health Department, won't let Brown off the canvas until he "confesses" that it's her lesbian inclinations that he can't countenance.

Saying anything that can be construed as "bad" about homosexual, lesbian or other non-heterosexuals these days is a no-no!

I mean, just because the doc' likes ladies and writes a curse-filled letter on official stationery ... heck, nobody's perfect!

But the entire embroglio may be just enough to put the Republicans back in the ballgame for one of the highest and most influential offices in the Western Hemisphere.

That's if they don't start scrapping amongst themselves.

By sifting through the "PR" and bravado, it appears that the GOP standard-bearer in November could come from Evile Younger, state Attorney General, Ed Davis, former Los Angeles Chief of Police, and Assemblyman Ken Maddy.

San Diego Mayor Pete Wilson is a possibility.

Whoever gains the nod in the primary will be up against an incumbent who is almost looking beyond this year to 1980 when he may challenge President Jimmy Carter.

Which is all the more reason to believe that this particular Brown appointment, and the problems his department has engendered, may dash the coals of a Presidential contender in 1980 and/or '84.

Letters to the Times

The resignation

Editor, The Times:

The resignation of Chief Lindgren was a very traumatic and tragic experience for the chief, the city manager and the council.

The council candidates criticizing the handling of the investigation leading to the resignation only compound the sad and difficult problems for the principles involved. As we have read in the papers, the City Manager first learned of alleged irregularities in the police department from police officers. Obviously, the alleged charges were very serious. It was highly proper and professional for the city manager to conduct a private investigation to learn the truth or falseness of the accusations.

For Councilman Turner to write a letter to the press condemning the city manager is a very cheap shot. Mr. Turner had ample opportunity to tell the manager in person how he felt. Now, ten days later, Mr. Turner has questions; and he wants to ask them at a Council meeting where he can take the "grand stand" in hopes of gaining political advantage.

I think, instead, he will gain political disadvantage for the electorate will see the shallowness and hypocrisy of his maneuvers.

Obviously there is a lot of speculation and curiosity about the problems with the chief. Since the press and public haven't learned all the details, there has been criticism. Perhaps, after the District Attorney finishes his report, or if a hearing is held, curiosity will be satisfied.

In the meantime, the city manager and the city council have done their best to insure continuity of high quality police service, protect the rights and reputation of Chief Lindgren and provide for the best interests of the City of Livermore.

This is no time for political opportunism. It is a time for balance, compassion, patience, and understanding.

Thank you Valerie

Editor, The Times:

When Valerie Raymond says, "your Supervisor is as close as your telephone" (Pleasanton Times 1-11-78), she means and backs every word. Recently, I had the opportunity to find this out. My incident revolved around a governmental agency's disturbing, unsophisticated and dehumanizing way of dealing with a responsible person.

Mrs. Chandra Hinman, Administrative Assistant of Supervisor Raymond's office, without hesitation readily and cheerfully involved herself in my problem. She was extremely and refreshingly thorough until the matter was properly contained.

When you find people like this within a governing body, there should be no doubt in our minds but to appreciate their sincere efforts.

Supervisor Valerie Raymond and Mrs. Chandra Hinman, please accept my warmest thank you.

More on dogs

Dear Editor:

Heidi and I just read the recent letter on stray dogs and we would like to say that we have a sturdy fence completely surrounding our yard ... however someone left the gate in the front unlatched and that is probably the way they got in.

I would like to add that the Animal Controlman is apparently off duty on holidays. We called the police department on January first and he did not return our call until Wednesday the 4th.

When he did call he told us that he could not do anything about the dogs unless we captured or followed them to their homes. Here is a description of the dogs for any of you who would like to help find them. They were both about two to three feet high. One had black bushy hair, dirty looking and looked sort of like a black Labrador. The other dog looked like a young collie with a white splotch on the back of his neck.

Those Army atom blasts

"Smoky Investigation Turns Up New Dangers"
By Geoffrey O'Gara
Time's Washington Bureau

Washington — Army officials have acknowledged that over 100 military personnel were exposed to radiation doses above established safety limits at 1955 atomic weapons tests and that no attempt has been made to keep track of their health since that time.

In addition, an Army spokesman told the House Health and Environment Subcommittee Jan. 5 that troops were marched into radioactively contaminated terrain at 1953 tests without radiation film badges to measure individual exposure, despite reports of unusually heavy fallout.

These were among numerous disclosures of apparent radiation safety laxity described in testimony submitted during the subcommittee's investigation of an unusually high incidence of leukemia among military personnel present at the atomic bomb test "Smoky," detonated in Nevada August 31, 1957.

The hearings have taken the center ring in a controversy over possible military safety negligence in atomic troop tests and a more wide-ranging dispute over what constitutes safe levels of low-dose radiation.

Army officials suggested that several shots detonated earlier than 1957 at the Camp Desert Rock, Nevada atomic test grounds may have posed an even greater danger to troops of radiation exposure.

Rep. Paul Rogers, D-Fla. and Rep. Tim Lee Carter, R-Ky., expressed amazement and anger at the lax procedures of the Army in handling radiation safety at Camp Desert Rock exercises. Both congressmen criticized the military and Department of Energy officials for failing to mount a large-scale investigation of the incidents.

Department of Defense agencies and epidemiological experts at the US Public Health Service's Center for Disease Control have been looking into cancer occurrence among Smoky veterans for over a year, and their findings, officials say, could lead to studies of fifteen other atomic tests which involved some form of troop participation.

CDC officials have so far located only about 500 of a possible 3,000 troops present at the Smoky blast. Of those 500, eight have subsequently gotten leukemia. Normally, U.S. health officials say, only two cases of leukemia would be expected in a population of 3,000 men the age of the Smoky troops.

Since most of the Smoky troops were supposedly exposed to radiation within the safety limits set by the government at the time and still in effect today at nuclear power plants and medical facilities, officials say the findings could have wide repercussions in the nuclear power industry and medical field.

But Maj. Alan Skerker, a nuclear engineer in charge of the Army investigation, made it clear to the subcommittee that troop involvement in the Smoky test was much more orderly and perhaps safer than troop exercise in blasts which preceded it.

For a blast dubbed "Nancy," on March 23, 1953, Skerker said, nearly 3,000 Army men were marched into the bomb area without the film badges normally worn to detect dangerous levels of radiation. Because "the film dosimetry section could not keep up with the workload," according to Army reports, only one dosimetry film badge was issued per platoon. The dose reading on the single badge was used for the whole platoon.

The soldiers at Nancy were initially located in trenches 4,000 yards from the blast. A wind shift, Skerker said, blew the radiation cloud from the blast over the trenches, and three minutes later the troops advanced to about 500 yards from "Ground Zero." Skerker said there was "heavy fallout" in the maneuver area and the fallout specialists advancing ahead of the troops did not tell the commanders of their high readings. Even when directed to withdraw because of high radiation, Skerker said, commanders "experienced difficulty" withdrawing their troops.

Skerker said Nancy participants should receive a priority in the follow-up health research underway.

Again at two shots in 1955, only a limited number of individual radiation sensitive film badges were distributed during a large scale troop maneuvers, Skerker said. During the 1955 test series, he said, over 100 overexposures were reported at Camp Desert Rock, even though Army reports indicated that instruments used to record radiation were giving inaccurately low readings. Fifteen persons, received doses from two to seven times greater than the established safety limit, according to the Army.

Stemming the garbage flow

California's battle to contain its flow of garbage before it wreaks irreparable damage to the environment appears to be gaining momentum under the reinforced leadership of the state's Solid Waste Management Board.

Charged in 1973 with establishing policies and environmental standards for waste handling, along with the approval of county waste management plans, the SWMB is near completion of this phase with more than 90 percent of the counties in compliance.

The board also was given responsibility for research into new technology in solid waste processing and recovery including market analyses for recovered materials. In this area, although some small projects have been undertaken, a fair appraisal of the board's progress would be that it is just gearing up.

Operating with a limited budget of under $2 million, and some federal funds, it has allocated such amounts as $40,000 to Santa Clara County for a study of converting garbage to energy and $150,000 to four other bay counties for a similar study. Other projects include $45,000 to Contra Costa County to study the use of solid waste for steam generators at Pittsburg and $49,000 to Berkeley to study ways of reducing landfills.

Due to be submitted to the Legislature next month are recommendations for financing six "garbage to fuel" steam generator projects. Located in San Diego, Long Beach, San Francisco, Alameda, Contra Costa and Humboldt, the total cost is estimated at $384 million.

But it would be an error to think the board, composed of nine members, seven appointed by the governor and one by each house of the Legislature, is concerned only with "garbage to fuel" projects. Recovery of reusable materials is considered equally important. The board already claims great success with its "white paper" recycling project within state government with 25 office buildings, housing 27,000 employees, recovered over 340 tons of paper in its first year. It netted $38,000 and expects to double that this year.

Two bills passed last year are expected to really get things moving in the recycling field. One, aimed at environmental protection, prohibits the dumping of petroleum products into sewers, streams or land by anyone including the "do-it-yourself" motorist. More important, for it is estimated to raise $18 million the first year, is the anti-litter tax voluntarily imposed by the beverage industry. This will give impetus to projects for recycling beverage containers.

Probably the biggest obstacles ahead for the board and everyone who wants to participate in garbage management projects is the number of agencies which have authority on one aspect or another. These include the Energy Resources Commission, Public Utilities Commission, State Lands Commission, Environmental Protection Agency, Air Resources Board, State Water Resources Control Board, and the Departments of Transportation, Health, Agriculture and Water Resources. Also involved are several federal agencies. As a result, permits and approvals for projects must be obtained from more than one agency for any project and conceivably from all in some cases. The board, aware of this and the Dow Chemical fiasco, is working to simplify clearance procedures.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband learned about three months ago that he has terminal cancer. Naturally, this has been very hard on the entire family and we don't know how to handle it. Our children, both in their 20s, feel that they have to pretend to be full of fun to try to cheer up their father. Of course, we don't feel like laughing and it often strikes me that it's a horrible game none of us feels like playing. The doctors told all of us exactly what to expect. My husband wanted to know. In the past few weeks, his attitude seems to have changed. He's often quiet, but really he doesn't seem to be depressed. M.M.

DEAR M.M.: I think you and other members of your family would profit a great deal by reading some of the work of an Illinois psychiatrist, Dr. Elizabeth Kubler-Ross. She found that both the dying patient and those around him pass through certain stages and that it is better for the patient, as well as the family, if these stages can be synchronized.

Forced gaiety accomplishes little. It may only serve to isolate your husband and his family and friends. Usually, the dying person wants to be included in the good things that happen to those he loves, he wants to share pleasant things that may have happened during the day, as long as they are real. However, he will be quick to sense the pressure his family feels when they're pretending to feel something they don't.

After periods of denial, anger and depression, patients often reach a time of acceptance when they realize the end is near. When this happens there is often a sense of peace and a kind of contentment. This is especially true if the patient feels he has put details of his life in order.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My daughter-in-law is one of those "liberated" women who can't seem to find happiness in raising a family and being a good mother. Now with two children, 7 and 9, she's decided she has to go to work to "fulfill" herself. My son makes plenty of money and can give them everything they need. I can't tell you how much I disapprove of this. It's terrible for kids. I've told my son and daughter-in-law this and they as much as told me to mind my own business. I wish you'd write something showing mothers that they shouldn't desert their children just to satisfy their own selfish egos. O.B.

DEAR O.B.: I'm not going to write what I know you'd like to hear because I don't hold the view that mothers shouldn't work. First of all, many women are not as fortunate as your daughter-in-law—they have to work to support their families. Even if this were not true, however, there's nothing wrong with women working for ego gratification or for self-fulfillment, no more than it is wrong or inappropriate for a man.

Numerous statistics indicate that children, especially over the age of four, are not deprived when their mothers work, provided love and quality time is not withheld. If the mother is frustrated and forced to stay at home against her will, the children will definitely suffer even though she tries to hide her feelings of resentment. A happy, contented mother with self-esteem is more apt to be a good mother than one who is angry because she feels she's been cheated by life.

Try to understand and accept the fact that your daughter can work and also be an excellent, supportive, loving mother. Above all, don't shut your son and his family out because of your prejudice.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "HOW DOES A SIPHON WORK?"

A. ATMOSPHERIC PRESSURE AND GRAVITY, CAUSED BY THE UNEQUAL WEIGHT OF WATER IN THE SHORT AND LONG ARMS OF THE SIPHON, CAUSE THE WATER TO FLOW FROM THE HIGHER GLASS TO THE LOWER ONE.

DAVID STEIN
NORTH WOODMERE, NY

© 1978 by NEA, Inc. 1 M Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.

To make a siphon, fill a rubber tube with water and pinch the ends to keep the water in.

Put one end in a glass of water and the other end in an empty glass at a lower level. Now release both ends of the tube. The water flows from the upper glass to the lower one.

A siphon depends on atmospheric pressure and gravity.

As the heavier column of water in the longer arm of the siphon falls down it causes a suction that pulls on the water in the shorter arm. The water in the short arm then sucks up water from the glass.

The atmospheric pressure upon the surface of the water in the upper glass helps the process.

The pressure of the atmosphere forces the water up the shorter arm rather than the longer one because the weight of the water in the shorter arm is less.

The flow will continue because of gravity until the upper glass is empty or until the water level in both glasses are equal.

Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence Lamb M.D.

DEAR LAMB — Before a triple bypass two months ago my resting heart rate before getting out of bed was 58 to 62. Now it is from 90 to 110. The doctors in attendance contend there is "no cause for concern." The insurance companies contend the mortality rate triples with increased pulse rates above 90 per minute.

Is it conceivable that the rerouting of the blood with the additional stress of removal of 23 inches of vein from the left leg is causing the elevated pulse rate?

Since the initial heart attack nine years ago my weight has decreased from 193 to 162 pounds. I habitually ride a bicycle for exercise, approximately seven miles both morning and evening. But what the heck constitutes "moderate exercise?"

I'm delighted with the surgery. The alternative had begun to look rather dismal, anginal pain constantly, sick before I was through showering or 10 minutes on a bike, and popping pills.

Unfortunately, patients know nothing and doctors don't talk. Perhaps you have some information I can use. There are just too many bypass patients who know nothing or very little about what has happened and what constitutes a good recovery.

DEAR READER — There is no set rule as to what to expect after a bypass operation. As in your instance the operation is performed to reroute blood around an obstruction in an artery to the heart muscle — or in many cases, several detours for more than one plugged artery. The outcome often depends upon how much heart muscle was damaged from the clogged arteries in the first place.

Your high heart rate probably does not mean that you have not yet achieved complete recovery from your surgery as you have suggested. It takes a long time for the body to really recondition itself, even with expert help, after major surgery.

Don't be confused by those insurance statistics. They are for people who never had a bypass operation and the high heart rates tend to identify people who smoke, don't exercise, drink lots of coffee and sometimes use too much alcohol, are often fat and in general, comprise the segment of the population who are coronary prone.

I would suggest that you do the things now that you should have done before your first heart attack.

No book on bridge history would be complete without some discussion of the universally used Blackwood convention and its inventor, Easley Blackwood. Easley didn't use his convention today, but merely opened four spades. He was playing match-point duplicate against a couple who were not too expert. Anyway, West elected to open the six of diamonds.

Easley won the trick with his nine and led the deuce of clubs. West ducked and dummy's queen won. Now Easley discarded his king of clubs on dummy's ace of hearts and was ready to attack trumps.

He decided that an unsuccessful trump finesse might be followed by a diamond ruff so he cashed the ace and king of trumps. The queen dropped and Easley ran the rest of his trumps. The last trump lead squeezed West who had to unguard the queen of diamonds to gang on to a high heart. Easley had bid four and made seven.

Blackwood play had produced seven where even six should not have been made.

DeBolts will guest on TV with Dr. Schuller

It was in his power, stated Dr. Robert H. Schuller, Bob and Dorothy DeBolt would be named "Citizens of the Year."

As founders of AASK (Aid to Adoption of Special Kids), the DeBolts are considered pioneers in the movement to find adoptive homes for children once thought "unadoptable."

those with physical, mental or emotional handicaps, older children, those from racial minorities, sibling groups and victims of abuse.

In addition to six biological children of the DeBolts have adopted 13 others most of them handicapped. Each has chores to do in the home; several of the older ones have worked to pay all their college expenses; others excel scholastically and are developing artistic and musical talents.

"For our family," Dorothy explained, "a handicap is not a liability. In an atmosphere of love and mutual respect, it provides a challenge to excel."

Dr. Schuller, whose messages on positive thinking are broadcast weekly to millions of viewers nationwide, found the story of the DeBolts and their family such an inspiring one that the couple was recently featured as special guests at his morning services. The program will be aired on local television Feb. 5 and 12.

Shrove Tuesday pancake dinner

LIVERMORE — St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church, 678 Enos Way, will celebrate Shrove Tuesday, Feb. 7, with a traditional Shrove Tuesday Pancake Supper at 5:30 p.m.

Shrove Tuesday is traditionally a day of festivity celebrated the day before Lent begins. The English name "Shrove" is derived from the custom of shriving or absolving the sins.

In France the day is called Mardi Gras or "Fat Tuesday" because it is the last day that fats are allowed in the diet. The same reasoning brings about the name of "Pancake Tuesday" in English speaking countries for on this day housewives use up all the remaining eggs and fats in the larder in the traditional cakes.

In many countries the day is called "Carneval," from the word "carne" which means meat for there would be no meat during the Lenten period.

In all countries music, dancing, parades and fancy dress are in order. At the end of the day "The Spirit of Carneval" is laid away in his casket, dead until Easter revives him.

At St. Bartholomew's there is a traditional pancake supper to which all are invited. A meal of pancakes, sausages and eggs is served by the young people of the church.

This year the supper will be from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. at a cost of $1.50 per person and a limit of $6 per family.

Ash Wednesday services

LIVERMORE — "Remember that you are dust, and to dust you shall return," are the words with which Christians throughout the world will begin the Church's most solemn Penitential season of the year, the 40 days of Lent.

Traditionally, ashes have been imposed upon the foreheads of the faithful on Ash Wednesday, the first day of the Lenten period, which will end on Easter Sunday, March 26 of this year.

Ash Wednesday services at St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church will be on Wednesday, Feb. 8, at 6:45 a.m. for Holy Communion and imposition of the Ashes, 10 a.m. Holy Communion and Imposition of the Ashes, and 7:30 p.m. Holy Communion and Imposition of the Ashes.

Following the evening services will begin the first in a Lenten season of Meditations with a filmstrip and a meditation on the theme "Who Is On Trial Here?" from John 18: 12-13. The film strips and Meditations in the series will be continued throughout the Lenten series on Thursday evenings at 6:45 p.m. and Sunday mornings at the 9 a.m. church school hour.

Preceding the Thursday evening meditations there will be a potluck supper each Thursday.

Brown irked: Senate denies Peripheral

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., stung by the Senate's second rejection of his Peripheral Canal bill, said Thursday that he may build the controversial canal without legislative approval.

Thursday's 20-14 vote, seven short of the margin needed for passage, was a major setback for the Democratic governor, who had made the $3.4 billion plan a top priority and personally lobbied lawmakers for support.

Brown did not specify how he might build the canal without legislative approval, but said "it's possible," and that he might do that "as a last resort."

Supporters of the plan, SB 346 by Sen. Ruben Ayala, D-Chino, include the powerful Los Angeles-based Metropolitan Water District, some environmental groups and the Association of California Water Agencies.

They said the projects in the bill — three major new Northern California dams plus the 43-mile Peripheral Canal through the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta — are essential to protect the Delta from salt water intrusion and to deliver more water to the San Joaquin Valley and Southern California. But foes, led in the Senate by Sen. William Campbell, R-Hacienda Heights, said the proposal is "fraudulent" and that the canal, if built, would be "a monument of our errors."

"This bill provides no additional water for Southern California unless you destroy the Delta to do it," said Campbell, who is sponsoring an alternative bill to build six new dams, including three on the free-flowing Eel River on the Northern California coast.

In an interview after the vote, Brown condemned Republican senators who had opposed the plan, saying they voted against the interests of the state only to deny his administration a major achievement in an election year. "There are some Southern California Republicans who are more interested in creating chaos than they are in building for the future. That's why that bill was not passed today," Brown said.

He said the Northern California Democrats who teamed up with Republicans to defeat the plan were "misguided."

Brown said the bill "will be brought up for reconsideration, and I'm going to try again. But I expect difficulty," Brown said.

"If the election year politics are too strong, then obviously the bill will have to be taken up again next year, if not through legislation, then directly through the Department of Water Resources," he said.

Asked how he could build the canal and other water projects without approval from the Legislature, Brown said, "It's possible, with the appropriate cooperation of the federal government, that the State of California could do this through the Department of Water Resources without legislation. "But that's something I would really choose as a last resort," he said. "I pursue the legislative route (first)."

"The gubernatorial race is certainly an issue in this regardless of what some people have said," Ayala said.

But foes of the plan, an odd alliance of Northern California liberals and Southern California conservatives, raised a wide range of questions about the 15-year-old canal plan.

Sen. John Garamendi, D-Mokelumne Hill, said guarantees that the canal would not take too much water away from the Delta are "very shaky" and could "lead to the destruction of San Francisco Bay as it is" if the fresh water flow is reduced and salt seeps further up the Delta.

Sen. Peter Behr, R-Tiburon, who supported the plan last fall, said he switched because of worries about the Delta and the "insatiable" appetite of Southern California for more and more Northern California water.

Ayala said he would try again later this month to win Senate approval of the bill, possibly as early as next week.

"I think we still have momentum. I think we ought to bring it up as soon as we can. I think we can still get the votes," Ayala said.

The bill, which fell six votes short of Senate passage last September, also requires two-thirds approval from the Assembly, which passed an earlier draft on a 58-21 vote.

In the Associated Press interview, Brown repeated several times that one way or another, he expected to build the canal. And he was blunt in criticism of foes. "If the Southern Californians voted the best interests of their districts, the bill would pass," Brown said.

"It is very foolish, very shortsighted and a disservice to future generations not to build now ... As yet that reality just doesn't sink in to enough state senators."

"The struggle intensifies, but there will be a Peripheral Canal because California needs it. Otherwise, the California Water Project will grind to a halt, and the deserts will be sprouting cactus instead of avocados and the other crops that are now growing in other parts of the state," Brown said.

BART Freebie 'like stealing'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The troubled Bay Area Rapid Transit district gave free rides to all comers Thursday to atone for weeks of jammed cars and breakdowns. "It's just like stealing," one passenger chortled.

The day of free travel, estimated to cost the system $100,000, was authorized last week by BART directors to follow the end of a 69-day bus strike that forced many commuters who normally take the bus to ride the train. The Alameda-Contra Costa Transit District strike ended Jan. 29.

"It seemed like a good way to compensate riders inconvenienced by crowded cars and poor service, particularly during peak commute hours," said BART public relations manager Mike Healy.

Despite the free rides, early morning trains appeared no more crowded than usual. Officials said there would be no estimate of ridership until later in the day.

Some riders on the 75-mile system agreed that the free day was a good idea. Others criticized BART for continued poor service and lambasted the freebie as superficial.

"It's just a goodwill gesture," said Gene Cornelius, a securities manager who boarded near the eastern end of the line for a 40-mile ride to San Francisco. "I'm not sure what it's going to accomplish. I hope they have a good day, for a change."

Warrior rally topples Bucks

Warriors' Rick Barry goes for a shot over Buck's John Gianelli (40) and Alex English (Times photo by Michael Macor)

OAKLAND — Golden State Warriors, keyed by Charles Dudley and Robert Parish down the stretch in the fourth period, wiped out an 11-point Milwaukee lead and went on to post a 105-102 victory over the Bucks Thursday night to improve their playoff chances in the NBA's Western Conference.

Dudley and Parish each connected for eight points in the final quarter.

With 15 seconds remaining, Phil Smith found Cliff Ray open under the basket and the big fellow stuffed the ball to give the Warriors a 104-102 advantage with eight seconds remaining, Ray having a free throw to conclude the night's scoring.

Al Attles' Warriors evened their Pacific Division record at 25-25 while Milwaukee fell to 26-26 in the Midwest. The two teams have been jockeying for position in the last few ballgames.

Parish, finished his night's work with 26 points and 10 rebounds with forward Rick Barry connecting for 22 Golden State points.

A pair of former UCLA stars, Marques Johnson and Dave Meyers each had 19 points for the Milwaukee team which suffered its seventh straight road defeat. Johnson had 10 boards and Meyers 11.

Brian Winters, Milwaukee's leading scorer with a 19.7 average, had a chance to tie it at 104-104 with less than 10 seconds to go but Parish got in his way and caused the shot to go awry.

Bucks coach Don Nelson said, "Evidently Brian thought he could make the shot. He makes tough shots when we need them but I guessed he forced that one a bit. Maybe he thought he could at least draw a foul with the attempt."

Four Mats disqualified

The East Bay Athletic League Board of Governors met at Granada High School yesterday morning to consider the charges brought against Granada's coach Steve Page, and seven members of the wrestling team.

The special session of the Board, consisting of the principals from the eight school in the EBAL, was called because of a protest filed Tuesday by four EBAL wrestling coaches that Page had violated an EBAL law limiting the number of matches a wrestler is able to compete in.

According to the head of the Board, George Wilson, because of the fact that the Board regards scrimmages as a meet, Tom Sherman, Bill Freeman, Rick Quiroz, and Monte Young had gone over the 18 point limit.

The four Granada starters will be disqualified from any more competition this season. All four are seniors.

— By Elizabeth Scoyen

Page said, "They (the Board), wanted them to count. In other sections and leagues, the scrimmages aren't counted, but here they are," he continued.

Two of the coaches that had leveled the charges against Granada were unable to comment.

"I'm under strict orders not to talk about it," Livermore coach Ed King stated.

Amador Valley coach Ron Blanton said that the decision was made by the Board of Governors, and that Wilson was the official to talk with.

Because of complications with four men out of the line-up, a tentative agreement was reached that Granada and Livermore, scheduled for a meet at Granada last night, would only wrestle their junior varsity squad, according to Page.

The contest never took place, and was forfeited by Livermore.

"There is no match tonight," Livermore Athletic Director Tom Favero announced yesterday afternoon. "We aren't taking the junior varsity or the varsity, since the varsity was cancelled," he said.

"I really can't say anything more about it. We just don't want to keep this thing going," he explained.

Page said that his varsity team didn't wrestle because of "four holes." "I've lost four and the other three are close to the limit and couldn't wrestle either. The other guys wanted to stick together. They told me that they didn't want to wrestle because they wanted to stick behind the four that got shafted," Page said.

Because the meet was forfeited, Livermore finished the season with a league record of 5-2, while Granada winds up in second place with 6-1.

The other charges listed in the protest included a number of alleged tournament entry violations, which Page denied adamantly.

"The charge made about the novice thing was totally false. The only thing discussed in the meeting was the 18 point thing. They said yes, they will count the scrimmages and the forfeits, retroactively though. Even though we didn't know about it," he added.

Without question, Page said, the disqualified matmen are disillusioned.

"The kids are really upset. But it's not their fault. They're getting nailed after the fact," he said.

Glads aim for NC mat title

Chabot College wrestling coach Zack Papachristos has an optimistic outlook on the chances of his ten member squad placing in the Northern California Junior College Wrestling Tournament today.

The meet, which is the last for many of the participating schools before the upcoming State Tournament, will be hosted at Ohlone College in Fremont. The qualifying rounds begin at 10:00 a.m., and the finals are scheduled to start at 7:30 p.m.

"I think all of them, going down the line-up, have a good chance of qualifying for state," Papachristos predicted.

Only the top four wrestlers are invited to participate in the State Tournament.

The Chabot Gladiators boast an undefeated record in the Golden Gate Conference, despite numerous injuries.

Amador Valley High grad Benny Lafever, who has no record as of yet, will be replacing the injured

Ron Freeman in the 190 pound division.

Bruce Kawabata, 118 pounder, will give challengers tough matches. He is 16-4 for the season. Jesse Bails will retain his starting position in the 126 weight division with a 20-6 total.

The 134 pound spot will be filled by John Pryor, (16-9). Brad Vadnais, (19-6), will compete in the 142 weight class.

Les Santos, (13-3), takes on comers in the 158 division, and Kevin Dugan, recovering from an ankle injury earlier in the season, will try and dominate the 158 pounders. Dugan has only one loss to 20 wins this season.

Bill Choate, who had suffered a knee injury, will be back in the lineup in the 167 class. Choate is 19-2. Roy Cloutright will wrestle at 177 pounds, with a 11-7 record. Heavyweight Tom Thomsen, who is the other Glad with only one loss this season, will try and up his win record to 24.

Don wrestlers win crown

Yesterday afternoon before the meet with Foothill, Amador Valley High School's wrestling coach Ron Blanton tried to psych his team up by waving a predictive banner in front of them.

The banner read Amador Valley, East Bay Athletic League undefeated champions, 1977-78.

The banner's message is now a reality as the Dons finished off Foothill, 53-9 and ended their season with a 7-0 record.

"They saw that and went berserk. The talent was there, and they used it," Blanton remarked.

Blanton was so assured of the victory, that he rented out a pizza parlor earlier in the week and footed the bill for the team and quests.

"I'm always confident, if they wrestle the way they should. I'm really proud of them. They're tough. They grew and that's what's neat about it," Blanton said as he stood dripping in a pool of water. He had just been carried into the shower by his high-spirited team.

"I was looking forward to it, actually. It gives them satisfaction. They sacrificed for me all season and they earned the right," Blanton commented.

In a dramatic match in the 191-pound division, Ernie Zumbach closed out the league season for the Dons, with a pin in the second period over the Falcons' Steve Scorby. The heavy-weight match was a double forfeit.

Steve Potts continued to dominate the EBAL in the 122-pound weight division by shutting out Foothill's Tony Parco, 12-0.

Bryant Bumlang won the only match for the Falcons, when he had a 6-3 decision over Amador Valley's Bob Boven in the 127-pound class.

Foothill forfeited in the 98-pound division as well as the 140's and 145's.

Blanton stood in the locker room with a blissful smile on his face and said, "What can I say? It was just lovely," he said with his hands out to his side.

The Amador Valley junior varsity slid by Foothill, 42-28. The Dons finished 5-2 in junior varsity competition.

'Pokes top Gaels, meet SR tonight

Dublin High's basketball team found out one of the simple facts of life Wednesday in their East Bay Athletic League game with league-leading Livermore.

The Gaels hung in tough against the Cowboys, but if you hang too long, sooner or later you die.

Livermore defeated Dublin 68-48 in the final score was only indicative of the final quarter, where the Cowboys outscored the Gaels 25-10 to finally put the game away.

The win kept the 'Pokes in sole possession of first place with an 8-1 record, while the loss ended any realistic hopes of a Dublin playoff berth. The Gaels are now 3-6 and would probably have to win all of their remaining games (starting with Amador tonight) to make the cut.

In other games Wednesday, Amador Valley remained one game off the pace of the Cowboys with a 65-51 drubbing of Granada, which lost its hold on fourth place; California jumped into a tie for third place, with a 60-46 win over slumping Monte Vista; and San Ramon broke a six-game losing streak with a 54-52 win over Foothill.

In contests tonight, the Cowboys travel to Danville to play San Ramon (3-6). Dublin hosts Amador (7-2), California (5-4) hosts Foothill (1-8) and Monte Vista (5-4) visits Granada (4-5).

For the Matadors, tonight's game is a near-must win. A win would vault them into a tie with the Mustangs for the final playoff spot, while a loss would drop them two games behind the Mustangs and the Grizzlies, depending on how Cal fares against Foothill.

The Gaels found themselves trailing 13-8 after the first quarter against the Cowboys, but rallied in the second quarter to finally tie the 'Pokes 24-24 on a jumper by Jeff Barnes with 1:10 left in the half.

After a missed free throw by Jeff Magathen, Marcus Reese pulled down the rebound with :36 to go and followed it through the hoop for a 26-24 Dublin lead.

Livermore tied the contest at 26-26 three seconds before halftime when Ed Dante wheeled and canned a jumper. When John Farfan converted a lay-in to begin the second half, the 'Pokes took a 28-26 lead they never relinquished.

Reese scored 16 points to top Dublin, while John Bachleda played one of his finest games of the season by pouring in 20 points for Livermore. Bachleda scored ten of his team's 13 first quarter points. Dick Patterson scored 18 points, 13 in the second half, while guard Jim Rogers scored ten points on the night.

Amador's win over Granada helped solidify the Dons' playoff position, while keeping their hopes alive for a showdown with Livermore, whom they trail by a single game.

Taking a 12-2 lead after the first quarter, the Dons increased that to 20-4 late in the second quarter before Granada managed to cut it down to 27-16 by halftime.

Granada's Dan Lambert was held scoreless for most of the first half, but wound up pumping in 23 points on the night, nine of which came from the free throw stripe.

Amador maintained a 42-28 lead after three quarters, but a frantic rally by the Mats closed the gap to 54-45 in the last quarter. Both teams scored 23 points in the final quarter as the Dons successfully staved the Mat momentum.

Darren Pembroke lead all Amador scorers with 15 points, while Rick Howard swished 13 and Ken Noble netted ten. Scott Morton scored ten points for Granada.

Foothill High's basketball team continued their hard-luck season by losing another tight contest, 54-52, as San Ramon matched a Falcon rally bucket for bucket in the closing moments.

Foothill led 13-10 after the first quarter, but SR wound up on top 19-17 at halftime. At the end of the third quarter, the Wolves kept a 35-33 lead.

Rick Rosenbach, who kept the Falcons in the game with a pair of crucial lay-ins late in the game, finished the night with 16 points for Foothill, while Mike Buckley led all scorers with 17 markers for the Falcons.

The Grizzlies did not have the game well in hand until the final quarter, when they ripped off ten straight points to begin the period. A 41-37 lead was quickly upped to 51-37.

After that, the Mustangs could get no closer than ten points from the Grizzlies.

Cal had leads of 14-12 and 31-23 after the first two stanzas.

Davis, AL president discuss A's problem

NEW YORK — Denver oilman Marvin Davis and American League President Lee MacPhail were meeting here Thursday, presumably to talk about the possible shift of the Oakland A's to Denver. But MacPhail played down the importance of the meeting.

"I'm having lunch with him, just lunch, that's all," MacPhail said of Davis, whose attempt to purchase the A's has been stymied thus far by the team's lease with the Oakland Coliseum.

"I don't know specifically what we'll talk about," MacPhail added. "He called me yesterday, said he'd be in the city and asked if I'd have lunch with him. I said okay. That's all I can say at this moment."

Earlier reports that National League President Chub Feeney would also meet with Davis were scotched by the NL office, which said Feeney was out of town for several days.

In San Francisco, the president of the Oakland Coliseum, Robert T. Nahas, met with San Francisco mayor George Moscone to discuss what could be the key to a move by the A's — the possibility of the National League's Giants playing some home games in Oakland.

A spokesman for the mayor said the two men talked for 2 hours and that the meeting was "amicable and, they think encouraging," and that another meeting will be held within a few days.

Nahas also is expected to meet with A's owner Charlie Finley this week.

Davis' proposed contract to purchase the A's for $12.5 million was withdrawn last week when Finley was unable to extricate the club from the remaining 10 years of its 20-year lease with the coliseum. Despite this, baseball officials are apparently still trying to work out a transfer of the team. "Everybody is working on this in good faith," Nahas said. "Maybe something will happen. We hope it can. Our attitude has been to keep the door open where one team would stay and hopefully prosper."

The bay area has been unable to support both the A's and the San Francisco Giants. The teams lost more than $1 million apiece last season.

Nahas said his talk with Moscone would be "to further investigate the possibility of an acceptable arrangement" in which the Giants would split their games between the Oakland Coliseum and their own Candlestick Park. Moscone has not been receptive to the idea.

"Other cities have buried the hatchet — like Minneapolis and St. Paul, Dallas and Fort Worth," Nahas said. "I don't know why we can't."

"Either an alternative will be worked out that's acceptable to all or we'll go on the way have been, with two teams."

Andrews, Finley settle

OAKLAND — A $2.5 million suit by former Oakland reserve infielder Mike Andrews against A's owner Charles O. Finley was settled out of court late Thursday, Andrews' attorney said.

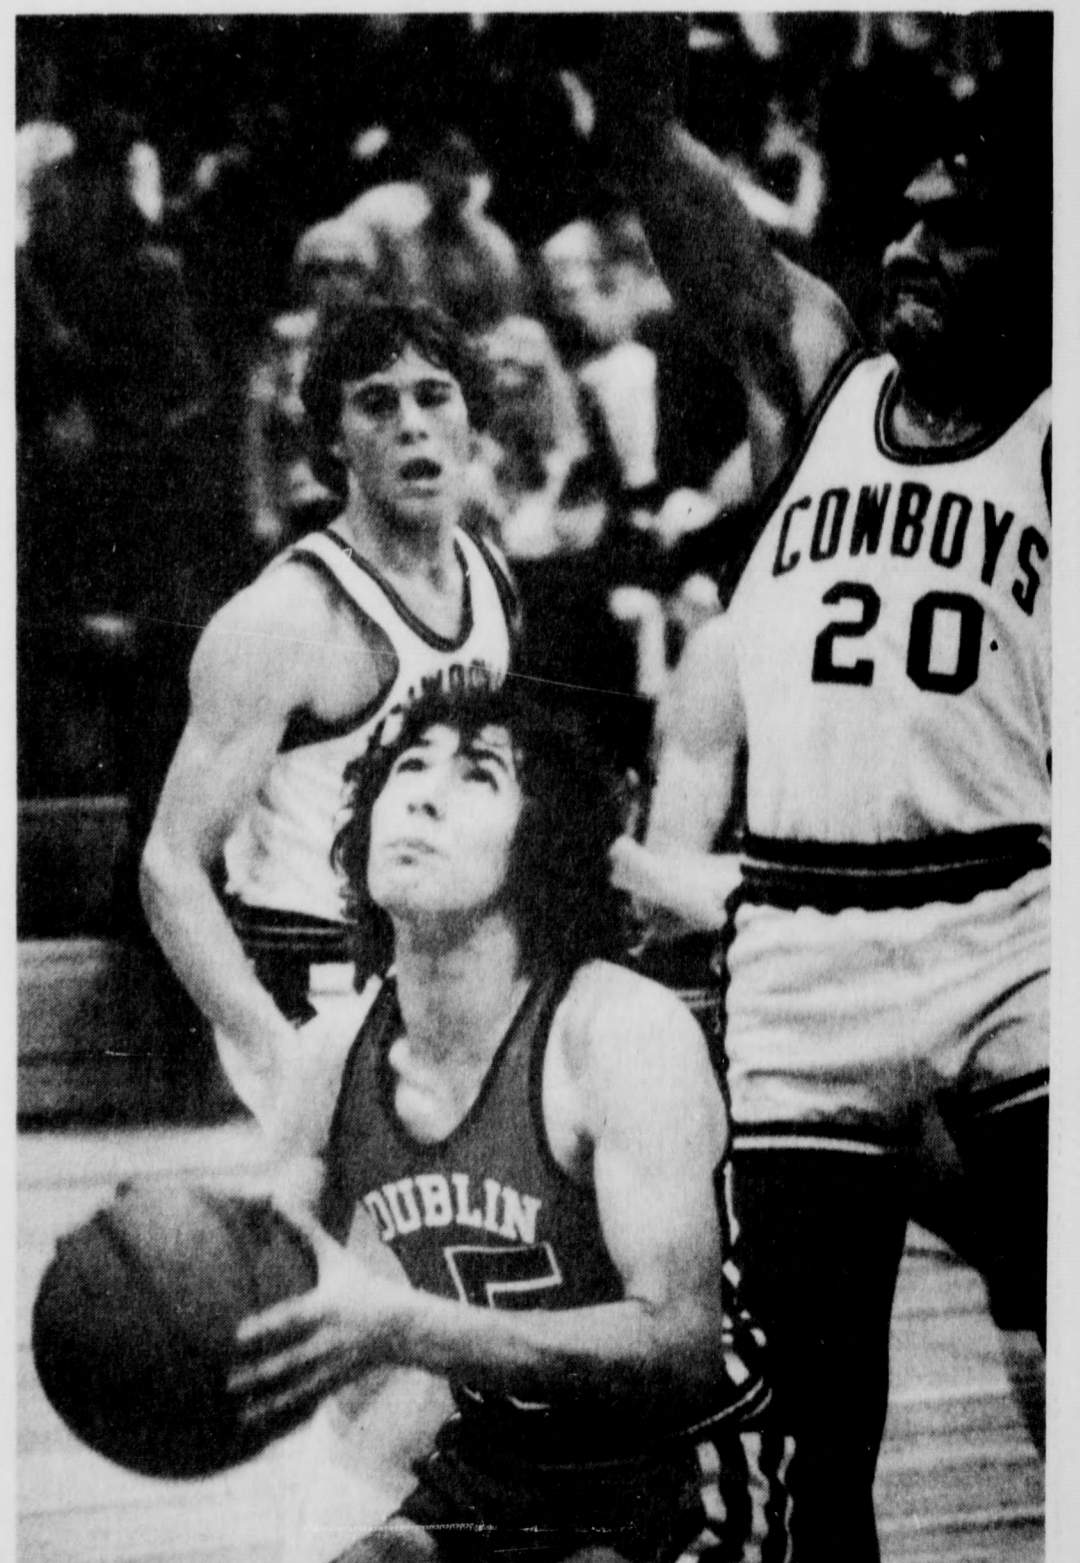

Robert Gottesman of San Francisco, Andrews' lawyer said a part of the settlement agreement was that neither side would disclose the amount or other details.

Andrews, 34, sought damages in Alameda County Superior Court because of the circumstances under which he was fired after making two costly throwing errors at second base in the 12th inning of the second game of the 1973 World Series here against the New York Mets.

He said the A's issued a false report that his throwing arm was impaired by a chronic shoulder injury, pressured him to sign it and then put him on the disabled list.

Manager Dick Williams and Andrews' teammates openly protested the treatment of the second baseman.

Examiner Games trials

Stohr, Williams lead valley hopes

SAN MATEO — Diana Stohr and Cheri Williams will renew an old rivalry when they compete in the women's 1,000-yard trials of the San Francisco Examiner Games at City College of San Mateo here tomorrow.

Williams, a senior at Livermore High School, and Stohr, a Chabot College runner who graduated from Granada High School two years ago, both competed in the 1976 State High School championships. Stohr finished third in the 880-yard run. Williams also competed in the 1977 state meet in two events.

Stohr and Williams are but two of a number of valley and Southern Alameda County athletes who will perform in the trials.

Livermore High School will have Steve Lloyd competing in the boys' high school open two-mile run. There is also a possibility the 'Pokes' outstanding high jumper Bob Churchill will compete in the high jump.

"We're not sure if he'll be able to compete in the high jump and there isn't a high school boys' high jump," said Livermore coach Jack Nix. "However, we're going to bring him to San Mateo and see if he can compete."

"He's been doing a lot of weight lifting," Nix went on about his star jumper. "He has a best of 6-foot-11 and has done 6-foot-5 in several all-comers meets this year. But he's in excellent, mid-season shape now."

Another outstanding Cowboy athlete who would undoubtedly qualify tomorrow if he were allowed to compete is Rob Wentworth the North Coast Section varsity boys cross-country champion. However, Wentworth is still playing basketball and can't compete in the trials as a result.

Stohr and former Granada teammates Kathy Honour and Debbie Santauria will also be part of a Chapot women's mile-relay team. The Gladiators also have a flock of men attempting to qualify in the junior college division. The men's junior college competition will be held at San Jose City College, along the the College Division, Masters'.

Devil Mile and Walk athletes.

High jumper Bob Peterson, whose has done seven feet, will be attempting to exceed his best in that event.

Chabot pole vaulter Hal Rooney is hoping to be among the six that will qualify for the finals Feb. 18 at the Cow Palace. Rooney has done 14-feet-8.

The other Gladiator entry is the mile relay team of Terry Jonsson, Rick Judy, Steve Blagden and Don Malcolm. They could possibly go down to 3:25.0.

On the college division level Hayward State is bringing a host of athletes to San Jose for the qualifying.

Pioneer coach Jim Santos, a Pleasanton resident, has high hopes for high jumper Dave Haber, who has done 7-4 and is the three-time NCAA Division II champion. Haber will be competing in the open division against some world-class athletes since there isn't any college-division high jump.

Haber will probably be going against Olympic champion Jacek Wszola of Poland, former world record holder Dwight Stone and Silver medalist Greg Joy of Canada. There is also a possibility Franklin Jacobs, the new world indoor record holder, will be entered. Jacobs did 7-foot-7 1/4 recently.

DVC, Gladiators host GGC tilts

Chabot and Diablo Valley colleges hope to rebound from frustrating losses when they play Laney and Canada, respectively tonight.

Chabot hosts Laney and DVC meets visiting Canada. Both games start at 7:30 p.m.

Chabot fell to West Valley 75-60 Wednesday and Laney dumped DVC 98-66 Tuesday night.

West Valley streaked to a 42-24 halftime advantage and was never in trouble against the Gladiators. West Valley won despite the fact it committed 23 fouls to just 12 for Chabot.

Laney out rebounded Diablo Valley 72-40 and that pretty well decided the contest. Part of the Vikings' trouble on the boards can be attributed to the loss off all three of their centers. Rodney Johnson quit the team earlier in the week while Ken Craft and Robert Alston each fouled out. That left 6-foot-4 Mark Harski to man the post position.

Amador, Falcon booters battle

Amador Valley and Foothill will tangle on the Don field in a key East Bay Athletic League soccer match today at 3 p.m.

Other EBAL matches have league-leading Dublin (10-1-1) hosting California (1-11); Livermore (5-7) traveling to Granada (8-2-2) and Monte Vista (3-9) playing host to winless San Ramon (0-10).

Amador Valley is 9-1-1 in EBAL action and two points behind Dublin. Foothill is 8-3-0 and needs a win to stay close to the leaders.

Amador Valley has been on a surge the past two weeks. The Dons have shutout Granada and Livermore in their past two games and have 11 shutouts for the season, a school record.

However, the Falcons have probably the premier goalie in the EBAL in Dave Konecny. Konecny had 15 saves as the Falcons upset Dublin, 1-0 Tuesday. Konecny has been brilliant recently. He had another fine game against Livermore last Friday as the Falcons won, 1-0.

UCLA routs Cards

LOS ANGELES — UCLA remained undefeated in Pacific-Eight Conference basketball action with a convincing 101-64 victory over visiting Stanford here last night.

Kimberly Belton canned 15 points, including seven of seven free throw attempts, for Stanford. But UCLA had four players in double figures to win going away.

Six AC's win

Six Livermore Aquacowboys came away from a recent tri-meet winners and numerous others placed.

In the boys 13-14 age group, James McGoldrick swam a 58.3 to win the 100-yard freestyle while on the girls side of that same division Theresa Tinney won the 100 free in 1:00.9.

At the 11-12 level, Pat Carvacho became the only Aquacowboy or girl to win more than one event, taking the 50-yard freestyle in 29.3 and the 50-yard backstroke in 35.5. Lex Johnson was the top 11-12 year old boy for Livermore, winning the 50-yard breast stroke in 36.1.

At the 10 and under plateau, Todd Suender copped the 50 free in 34.3 and in eight and under Michael Morgan proved best in the 25-yard breast stroke in 23.9.

By WILLIAM RUMBLER
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — The hulk of the 1977 Oldsmobile stood out even among the hundreds of wrecks in the auto salvage yard. Its entire front end was missing, and every inch of sheet metal and chrome was gone.

A close look revealed that it had not been in an accident. Instead, it was one of the thousands of cars that are snapped up each year by thieves and sent to "chop shops," to be scavenged and left like skeletons in the desert.

Throughout the nation it is becoming increasingly uncommon for stolen cars to be resold in one piece.

Whole cars — even engines and frames — have serial numbers and are relatively easy to trace. But other parts — including bumpers, hoods, fenders and chrome fittings — are valuable, virtually untraceable and, therefore, less risky to dispose of. They can be stripped off in a matter of hours by thieves using welding equipment and other special tools.

Like other hulks in the salvage yard near Chicago run by a subsidiary of Allstate Insurance Co., the Olds showed signs of having been professionally chopped: its door bolts had been neatly removed and its wires cleanly cut so as not to damage the parts being removed.

Where are the stolen parts now?

Some, authorities say, may be headed to an auto salvage yard in the East, some may be under a welder's torch on the other side of town and some may become part of your car the next time you take it to a body shop for repair. It is rare for chopped parts to be recovered.

Paul Gilliland, vice president of the National Auto Theft Bureau in Jericho, N.Y., said chop shops were becoming increasingly popular among thieves. The bureau, funded by auto insurance companies, helps identify recovered and damaged autos.

But because of chop shops, Gilliland said, fewer and fewer stolen cars are being recovered.

Gilliland said that 15 years ago 92 percent of all stolen cars were recovered, although some had been damaged or partly stripped. But less than 70 percent of the 795,000 autos stolen across the nation in 1976 were recovered, he estimated.

Gilliland said chop shops were a nationwide phenomenon concentrated in large urban areas where streets lined with autos offer a supermarket selection of the newer, expensive models most favored by thieves.

Authorities say they have not been able to determine what portion of stolen autos go through chop shops because not enough is known about their numbers and operations.

"There is no way to tell how many chop shops there are. It would be a guess," said Chicago Police Lt. Francis O'Malley. "Anyone can get into the chop shop racket. As long as you have the tools and the buyers available, you can get to work."

According to O'Malley, an expert on the stolen car racket, the chop shop system works because there is a greater demand for parts than manufacturers can quickly meet and because auto parts sell separately for much more than their value in an assembled car.

Saab's new Turbo will go on sale at dealers next month and features a better-performing, more economic engine, thanks to a turbo charger. When equipped with the turbo charger, the 2 liter Saab four-cylinder engine puts out 135 horsepower while delivering 27 miles per gallon of gasoline on the highway and 20 mpg. in city driving. The Turbo boasts a top speed of more than 110 miles per hour and can go from 0 to 60 mph in nearly 9 seconds. The turbo charger goes into action only when the driver needs extra power. Prototypes of the new car have been road tested more than two million miles in Sweden, Germany, Switzerland and the United States.

Tips on camping in the snow

A campground with nearly every campsite silled with a motor home or trailer and bustling with activity. That is a familiar scene during the peak vacation months of July and August.

But how about the times when the roads leading to a state park or private campground are lined with several feet of plowed snow? And the campsites must be hollowed out of that fluffy white stuff?

Nowadays the scene might very well be the same — the campground almost filled and the place buzzing with activity.

"Each year a growing number of camping families are making more use of their recreational vehicles. They have discovered that you need not be a weathered woodsman to enjoy the north woods during the cold snowy months of winter. They have discovered that off-season mini-vacations — weekends — are a great diversion and a welcome break during the dull monotonous months of winter," Robert H. Kline, Chrysler Corporation's manager of RV sales, said.

"Modern motor homes and travel trailers are built to take the cold weather with insulation to keep out the cold and small but powerful heating units to keep the interiors warm and cozy, he said.

"Camping families have learned that winter camping trips give them more dollar value from their recreational vehicle by not limiting its use to just the warm days of summer," Kline noted.

The first winter trip may take some courage, Kline noted, but according to one winter camping fan:

"once you get over the fear of freezing, it can be more refreshing than a summer vacation."

Kline said the first to take advantage of winter camping were the snowmobilers and skiers. Weekend rates are certainly more reasonable at a campground than eating out and sleeping in a motel.

But you don't have to own such winter recreation equipment to enjoy the north woods.

Shops in most northern resort areas have rentals available as do many of the year-round campgrounds. Some offer guided snowmobile safaris and marked trails for those not familiar with the territory.

Winter changes the personality of the north woods. You are more likely to see wild game in their natural habitat and more picturesque scenery. If you chose to take a quiet walk in the woods, snowshoes can be rented by the day.

Ice fishing equipment is inexpensive and can be purchased around your home or near that northern lake. Ice fishing shanties already located on a lake can be rented at many locations.

"But don't forget to bring along those ice skates, sleds and toboggan. Their use is free up north," Kline said.

Kline offers these extra planning and precautions for winter camping trips:

- What you wear is important. Wool and down filled clothing is the best. Bring along sweaters for the family to wear inside the camper to ward off chills and drafts.
- An extra blanket or two will keep you snug in that summer sleeping bag and some cocoa and cans of soup will also take the chill away.
- Water can be stored in plastic containers so as not to endanger the unit's water system and clear heavy plastic sheets taped over the window will also contain the heat in the RV.
- Be sure at least one window or roof vent is open just a bit to provide circulation of air.
- If you need to supplement the RV's heater, small electric heaters can be used. Most campgrounds open in the winter provide electricity.

Chrysler Corporation is the recreational vehicle industry's leading supplier of motor home chassis, a position it has held since the industry began.

Clearing up federal aid for highways

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter asked Congress today to authorize a five-year, $50-billion program aimed at simplifying and integrating more than 30 federal highway and mass transit programs.

In a special message, Carter said he is proposing "a reorganization of a variety of highway and transit programs into a simpler and more manageable system of federal assistance."

Some highlights of the proposal:

- The federal share of program costs for all except the interstate road system would be made uniform at 80 percent. The interstate share would remain at 90 per cent.
- State and local governments would have greater flexibility in using federal grants for their own priority projects.
- Filling remaining gaps in the interstate highway program would get priority treatment.
- Urban highway-transit planning would be integrated, with federal funds going to a single local agency.
- The program envisions five-year authorizations of $35.6 billion for highways and $14.9 billion for transit activities.

Accord LX

A new Accord model, the LX, has been added to the 1978 line of American Honda automobiles.

The Accord LX expands the already-long list of standard equipment features that have distinguished the highly popular Accord since its introduction in July, 1976.

Added a standard on the Accord LX are air conditioning, a rigid tonneau cover, a digital clock, an AM/FM radio with stereo cassette player, and steel-belted radial tires.

The LX also features a power-steering system with variable assist that is exclusively Honda's. It gives full power assist at low speeds for easier maneuverability, yet retains "feel of the road" at highway speeds.

As an extra touch of luxury, the LX is distinguished by a special trikot fabric trim interior in burgundy. It comes in two metallic exterior finishes, Lausanne Silver and Versailles Maroon.

Dublin Honda at 7099 Amador Plaza Road celebrates its grand opening all this weekend with special events. Co-owners Richard Madding and Kenneth Harvey start their new venture with a combined total of 35 years in the Honda business. Joining their staff are Bob Potter, Mac Lacombe, Dan Hill and David Locke. The dealership will be open from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily.

What to do in an accident

One of every four automobile accidents occurs on a wet, icy or snow-covered road, according to the Insurance Information Institute.

With the chances of an accident increasing as driving conditions become more hazardous during the winter months, the Institute urges every driver to be aware of certain steps that should be taken in case of an accident. These include:

- Stop, identify yourself and summon aid for the injured, as required by the law.
- Write down the other driver's name, address and driver's license number.
- Obtain the names and addresses of all passengers involved in the accident and anyone who witnessed the mishap.
- Refuse to sign any liability waivers or assurances that you are uninjured since accident injuries are not always immediately evident. Even if you only suspect you are injured, you should consider seeing a doctor.

- Tell the basic facts to the police officer who investigates the accident, but do not admit to fault under any circumstances. Make a note of the officer's name, badge number and jurisdiction.
- Take notes on the circumstances surrounding the accident, including time, place, weather and road conditions, any evidence of a law violation, approximate speed of both cars and other relevant details.
- Report the accident to your insurance representative promptly since most policies require such notification within a specified period. In order to speed the claims settlement, include your policy number and all the details.

Like the regular Accord, the LX has a five-speed transmission with Honda-matic also available as an option.

Both the 1978 Accord and the Accord LX have chrome wheel trim rings, automatic choke and an ash tray in the right front door.

The regular Accord offers a choice of three exterior finishes — Sophia Red, Athens Gold metallic or Nice Blue metallic, with corresponding interiors in black, gold or blue.
